Drale Hits Shakeup Of Board

Appointment of a successor to ousted Civil Service Commissioner George Downing squeaked through by a 4 to 3 City Council vote Tuesday, with the action termed "unconstitutional."

Councilman Nicholas O. Drale made the only comment in opposing the appointment of Richard Sagrillo, Waiteria insurance broker to the vacancy.

"In all due fairness and respect to Mr. Sagrillo . . . the ordinance is unconstitutional and against the charter of the city," Drale snapped.

He and Councilmen Willys Blount and George Bradford have opposed the amendment which chopped the term of commission members from six to four years. Downing, who has served more than four years of his present term, was automatically fired when the amendment was adopted.

In other actions concerning commissions, all was harmony.

The Council approved Mayor Albert Isen's suggestion that councilmen nominate a member to the newly created Water Commission, and that the names of five be drawn out of a hat. The mayor also proposed that an ordinance be drawn to create a Civil Defense and Disaster Commission to supervise emergency work.

In another action, the Council ordered that all members of the Airport Commission serve an additional year, to make four year term of all commissions uniform.
